

Editing Quest

(at the top of your paper in the margin
write: Editor 1 _____, Editor 2
_____, Editor 3 _____, and Wise Old Sage_____.)

1. First, you must banish all of these monsters:

Misspelled words

Incorrect grammar

There, their, they're

You

Its, It's

2. You must find an ally! Trade papers (make sure your name is on your paper)

3. Editor 1 should fill in his/her name at the top.

4. The editor will now read your entire paper. Somewhere on your paper, the editor will write 3 compliments.

5. Return papers and find another ally to power up.

(Editor #2 & name _____). This ally will make sure you have all the tools to make an excellent personal narrative.

 Put a square around every transition word.

 Circle every very specific description of imagery.

Return papers and find another ally.

Editor #3:

Place a 😊 beside all dialogue.

Place a star beside every word that seems sophisticated. (Ex: great vocabulary words).

5. Talk to a wise, old sage. Switch papers with another person. Let this person read your paper and give you advice.

Questions for wise, old sage to write answers somewhere on your paper.

Do you feel a personal connection or can you relate to the paper? If so, how has the writer done that? What can the author do to strengthen that audience relationship? Did the author's one personal experience impart a lesson? What was it?

Congratulations!!! After you finish your final draft of your paper, you will have saved a paper in distress!

Preparations for Valentine's Day!!!

(Separate sheet of paper)

“Mini-Crush Monday”- Don't worry.

This is entirely private.

Consider your crush or sweet pea.

1. If you could tell him/her anything, what you say?

2. What could you compare your love to?

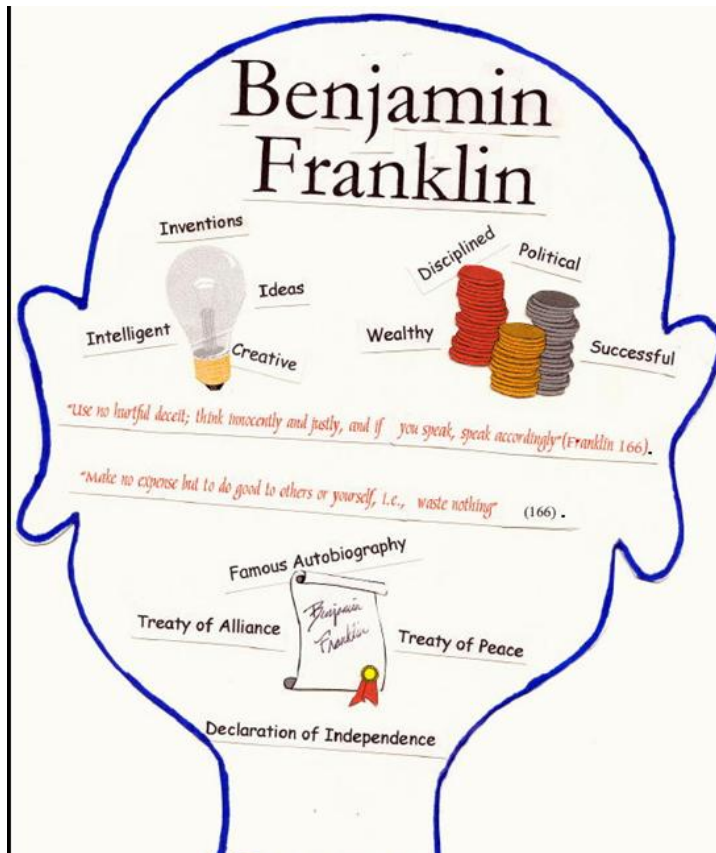

3. Using hyperboles, how much do you love him/her?

4. What are your hopes for him/her?

5. What are your hopes for your relationship for the future?

Anne Bradstreet Open MindPortrait

Using an entire sheet of paper, draw the outline of only her head.

As you read the poem,

For her head write in the answer:
What does she compare her love to?
List one specific “quote” to back up your first answer.

For her eyes write in: How much does she love him? List one specific “quote” to back up your first answer.

For her mouth write in: What does she want for his future and their future? List one specific “quote” to back up your first answer.

DIY Modern POEM Requirements

3 stanzas with same number of lines

(4, 4, 4)

Hyperbole

Metaphor

Allusion

Intro: (comparisons)

Middle: (descriptions/hyperbole)

Conclusion: (future goals)

Rhyming Couplets

Parallel Structure

 Capture her TONE

